Commissioner Adelstein:

I am writing to voice my observation concerning violence in media. I feel there is FAR too much violence, and that it's effects are far-reaching and very destructive to our society! Children and adults become desensitized. It is only natural for ones mind to play and replay scenes they have seen on a show over and over in their mind. I agree with Mead who was quoted saying "I don't want my kids to be thinking violent thoughts, or to be . . . seeing those images in their heads and so I don't want them to watch violence." Popular shows such as Fox's "24" and CBS' "CSI" push the envelope with it's violent programming. You ask the questions: 'Is it harmful to kids?' - YES, 'What's its effect?' A VIOLENT SOCIETY. There've been over a thousand studies that said that there's a causal connection, spend a day with a young boy who has just soaked in some of that violence and you will see it is more than casual! PLEASE restrict and eliminate this negative catalyst in our society!

Sincerely,

Kathleen Watson

Dear Chairman/Commissioner,

I am concerned with the level of violence on our television programs and movies. I have removed televisiojn access from my home because of it. I attempt to control what my children may see in others homes. It is a monumental task. There are some parents who assume that if it is on the television it will be for the family to see. That is no longer the case, and the ratings are often ignored. Our level of what is acceptable has lowered. It is my opinion that we raise the standard. Violence, sex, crude language are not acceptable for our children.

Sincerely,

Teresa Sizemore

We believe that when young minds watch the types of violence that is portrayed hourly on the television, it cannot help but affect them. We, as parents of married children, still do not watch the violent and illicit sex laden shows. When we grew up, the movies didn't show so much of those type of things and it was really a much more meaningful experience. It was just a better place to live then - much more peaceful! I know that you have nothing to do with the Play Station type games but they too are too violent and a negative influence on our children (and our adults too).
